

Jeffrey Stern Discusses Current Issues in Structured Finance at NYC Bar Program

JULY 26, 2016

Structured Finance Practice Co-chair Jeffrey Stern spoke at the New York City Bar's program "Current Issues in Structured Finance" on July 26. The panel, consisting of members of the Structured Finance Committee of the New York City Bar Association, discussed current issues and recent regulatory developments affecting the structured finance industry, as well as recent developments relating to specific sectors of the securitization market (e.g., marketplace loans, CMBS, CLOs, and more). Specifically, Mr. Stern addressed risk retention issues in CLOs. Other topics included securitization in China, blockchain and structured finance, mandatory arbitration, marketplace loans, and CMBS.

Mr. Stern has more than 20 years of experience in structured finance and derivatives and has completed asset-based financings, securitizations, specialized fund formations, and derivatives transactions involving an exceptionally wide range of asset types.

1 Min Read

Related Locations

New York

Related Capabilities

Structured Finance

Financial Services

Related Regions

North America

Related Professionals

Jeffrey Stern