

Claim Litigation in the Food Industry

FEBRUARY 16, 2017

This article originally appeared in Natural Products Insider. Reprinted with permission. Any opinions in this article are not those of Winston & Strawn or its clients; the opinions in this article are the authors' opinions only.

Not all substances contained in packaged foods and dietary supplements need to be disclosed in the products' ingredient statements. But can the presence of those substances impact claims and "romance language" included elsewhere on the products' labeling?

Plaintiffs' lawyers are increasingly answering that question "yes."

Read article

Less Than 1 Min Read

Authors

Amanda Groves

Jeff Wilkerson

Related Locations

Charlotte

Related Topics

Consumer Class Actions

Food and Beverage Litigation

FDA

Related Capabilities

Related Regions

North America

Related Professionals

Amanda Groves

Jeff Wilkerson