PATENT LITIGATION

PATENT LITIGATION WAS ALIVE AND WELL LAST YEAR.

The year 2012 saw a little bit of everything: Massive damages awards, increasingly brazen patent assertion entities, and the major patent reform law passed in 2011 beginning to make its mark.

The high stakes that companies faced, and the constant barrage of suits, kept law firms' patent practices busy, according to results from Corporate Counsel's 2013 Patent Litigation Survey, which ranks law firms according to how many federal district court patent suits they handled in 2012.

Many of the firms that took the top spots in last year's survey are back this time around. Fish and Richardson, which once again ranks number one, according to the data, handled 220 cases in 2012, compared to 173 in 2011—an increase of more than 27 percent. Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner, which took second place in this year's ranking, saw its caseload jump from 88 cases in 2011 to 95 in 2012—moving up from eighth to second place. And Kirkland & Ellis moved from fifth place to third, although the total number of cases it handled dropped by one to 95. Winston & Strawn ranked ninth in 2011 with 87 cases, but moved to the number four spot in this year's survey with 94 cases in 2012.
