Topic:

Combining maternity/paternity with a successful career in international arbitration presents a number of challenges. The panelists will engage in a candid discussion as to whether it is possible to “have it all” and how to manage competing and sometimes incompatible demands of parenthood and performance as an advocate, jurist or arbitrator. They will discuss these delicate issues from the perspective of: a partner in charge of an arbitration practice and supervising a team of associates; an associate striving to progress within the firm; an in-house counsel; an “arbitral mother” and an “arbitral father.”
