

The Nordic Sessions: Avoiding Employment Law Landmines

JUNE 13, 2019

Winston & Strawn is pleased to announce the launch of The Nordic Sessions—a webinar series focused on legal developments that impact Nordic companies doing business in the U.S. and around the world. The Nordic Sessions cover a broad range of legal topics—transaction and dispute-related, but more importantly, Winston & Strawn’s attorneys apply their experience and market knowledge to provide practical information and tips to maneuver through the legal landmines inherent in business.

Companies operating with employees in the U.S. need to be aware of state and federal employment laws. Employees can be a business’s greatest asset, but it may seem that there is a potential employment pitfall at every turn. The consequences of mishandling issues can be costly and time-consuming.

On June 13, 2019, Winston hosted the inaugural Nordic Session – “Avoiding Employment Law Landmines” presented by Jason Campbell. The presenters discussed employment litigation trends and provided practical strategies on a number of labor and employment-related issues, such as:

- avoiding claims of misclassification by independent contractors,
- unequal pay,
- #MeToo claims, and
- much, much more.

NOTE: CLE credit is not available for listening to our pre-recorded webinars.
