

Oil Price War and COVID-19 – Options and Opportunities for a Distressed Energy Industry

MARCH 31, 2020

Now what? How will the oil and gas industry survive and thrive in the wake of the Saudi oil price war and ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic?

Organizations will need to effectively navigate this challenging environment to transform themselves—to make themselves stronger and to be in a position to lead the industry into the future.

On March 31, 2020, members of Winston & Strawn’s restructuring, finance, capital markets, and labor and employment practices hosted an interactive CLE webinar that provided timely guidance for companies, creditors, and investors on a number of hot topics that should be on your radar in the current oil and gas market environment, including:

- Industry consolidation, through M&A, §363 transactions, and other restructuring activities;
- Financing and capitalization changes, including amendments to credit facilities, RBL redeterminations, debt exchange offers, rights offerings, and the like; and
- Rationalizing G&A costs to align with market needs.

Winston & Strawn LLP is an accredited CLE provider in California, Illinois, New York, and Texas. CLE credit is not available for listening to our pre-recorded webinar briefings.
