

New Partners Explain Why They Chose Winston & Strawn in Bloomberg Law Article

MARCH 25, 2020

Winston's new Health Care and Life Sciences partners, T. Reed Stephens and Amandeep Sidhu were featured in Bloomberg Law's article discussing their move to the firm. The attorneys explain why they wanted to make the move to Winston and how they hope to help clients in the health care and life sciences industries right now, as the landscape rapidly changes.

Reed cited the ability to grow at Winston as a deciding factor in the move. "The firm's growth strategy is very attractive to us and looks like a platform that is going to continue to successfully grow even in these stressful times."

In addition to explaining the regulatory challenges companies are facing as they adapt to the spread of the coronavirus, the article also explains the diverse backgrounds of each new partner, highlighting what they will bring to Winston & Strawn. Each attorney has worked in the health care and life sciences industries with companies and government organizations on various regulatory and compliance issues for many years, ensuring they will bolster the firm's capabilities related to investigative, regulatory and litigation matters.

"They are an excellent fit in our D.C. office, as we continue to support our clients' growing needs, particularly in the areas of government and internal investigations and corporate compliance," said David Rogers, Managing Partner of Winston & Strawn's Washington, D.C. office.

Read the full article here.

1 Min Read

Related Locations

Washington, DC

Related Topics

Health Care

Related Capabilities

Litigation/Trials

Health Care

Related Regions

North America

Related Professionals

Amandeep S. Sidhu

T. Reed Stephens

David Rogers