

Winston Partners with International Connector for the “Future Women in Tech” Career Development Panel

MAY 20, 2020

On May 20, Winston & Strawn is partnering with International Connector to produce “Future Women in Tech,” a virtual seminar and networking event. Future Women in Tech is an interactive, action-oriented forum for the discussion and development of how we can best support women in every stage of their careers.

In the past, this event has exclusively taken place in person. For the first time ever, the forum, and all of the insights to be found there, will be open to the public around the world.

This conversation, largely positioned around the state of affairs in San Francisco, will include networking breakout rooms, interactive polls, virtual whiteboard conversations, as well as a password-protected webpage where participants can see and connect with other attendees.

The event’s distinguished list of speakers and hosts include:

- Susannah Torpey, Winston & Strawn
- Marti Grimminck, International Connector
- Dawn Lillington, Australian American Chamber of Commerce, San Francisco
- Amanda Richardson, CoderPad
- Christine Hawkins, HP Inc.
- Claire Johnston, LendLease
- Dawn McIntosh, NASA
- Jean Hayden, Google

To sign up and learn more, visit their Eventbrite page.

1 Min Read

Related Locations

San Francisco

Related Capabilities

Technology, Media & Telecommunications

Related Regions

North America

Related Professionals

Susannah Torpey