OCTOBER 2020

Winston & Strawn London-based attorneys Zoë Ashcroft, Ian Borman, and Daniela Cohen co-authored the UK section in the Chambers & Partners' Banking & Finance 2020 Guide. This annual publication provides expert legal commentary on key issues for businesses and covers important developments in the most significant jurisdictions.

Winston & Strawn's London team provides a wide range of legal services, through its corporate and finance practice, to public and private companies, leading financial institutions, multilateral and development finance institutions, private equity and investment funds, alternative funding sources, investors and emerging companies. The firm advises on high-profile transactions and matters from cross-border transactions, initial public offerings (IPOs) and project finance matters, to distressed acquisitions and creative "first-of-their-kind" financings. Clients include leading domestic and international funding sources that provide senior, subordinated, secured and unsecured debt and hybrid (equity/debt) products, as well as institutional investors who regularly participate in the senior debt markets, equity sponsors, and borrowers in both developed and emerging economies. The practice focuses on complex cross-border deals, assisting domestic and international commercial and investment banks, finance companies, multilateral and development finance institutions, public and private companies, private equity funds and portfolio companies, on investment grade, leveraged and mezzanine financings.
