Neil focuses his practice on a broad range of corporate matters.

Neil is an associate in the firm's New York office. He represents clients in a variety of corporate transactions, including finance and mergers and acquisitions.

Prior to joining Winston, he worked at New York Legal Services, where he prepared asylum claims for LGBTQ+ clients by researching government discrimination against gay and transgender persons in Egypt and Mexico and wrote a tax guidance document for undocumented clients. As a clinical student at the Cyberlaw Clinic at Harvard Law School, Neil wrote a public comment to the Attorney General of California addressing the impact of new data privacy laws on the health industry and artificial intelligence researchers. He also served as a summer intern at the New York State Office of the Attorney General in the Antitrust Bureau, where he worked principally on merger review. Prior to attending law school, Neil taught seventh-grade math at a New York public school and served as a corps member for Teach for America.
