

Winston Attorneys Present on Antitrust for a New Era: How the Biden Administration and Congress are Approaching Antitrust Law, Enforcement, and Mergers

MAY 27, 2021

On May 27, Winston & Strawn Attorneys Susannah Torpey, Jeffrey Amato, and Nasir Hussain will present a Celesq and West LegalEdcenter/Thomson Reuters webinar titled “Antitrust for a New Era: How the Biden Administration and Congress are Approaching Antitrust Law, Enforcement, and Mergers.”

With Democrats in control of the White House and Congress, companies can expect an uptick in antitrust enforcement and merger reviews and challenges complemented by a marked increase in legislative activity related to competition. This one-hour program will focus on antitrust priorities of the new administration and the expected increase in enforcement in several key industries, including tech, health care, and agriculture, over the next several years. Panelists will discuss the implications of President Biden’s recent appointments for competition policy going forward. They will also review various legislative reform proposals before Congress—from a sweeping overhaul of U.S. antitrust law to more modest bills targeted at protecting competition in key sectors—and the significance of these potential changes for companies across industries.
