

Winston & Strawn Trial Team Secures U.S. Supreme Court Victory for College Athletes in NCAA Scholarship Antitrust Class-Action Lawsuit

JUNE 21, 2021

The U.S. Supreme Court today unanimously affirmed that NCAA restrictions on educational related athlete benefits are a violation of U.S. antitrust laws, in a historic decision in which Winston & Strawn represented the plaintiff athletes. As Justice Kavanaugh stated in a concurring opinion: “The NCAA is not above the law.”

Lead counsel Jeffrey Kessler stated: “This historic 9-0 decision is about the athletes, especially those who will never join the pros. It is a chance to make a meaningful difference in their lives and their communities. Hopefully, it will also swing the doors open to further change, so that we can finally see a fair and competitive compensation system in which these incredible players get to benefit from the economic fruits of their labors and pursue their educational objectives. Only then will the NCAA truthfully be able to say it is devoted to the welfare of the student athletes.”

Jeffrey Kessler is Partner, Co-Executive Chairman, & Co-Chair, Antitrust/Competition & Sports Law Practices for the law firm of Winston & Strawn. Representing the athletes from Winston & Strawn are Jeffrey Kessler, Linda Coberly, David Feher, David Greenspan, Jeanifer Parsigian, the late Derek Sarafa, Adam Dale, Scott Sherman, and Corinne Kyritsopoulos. Winston’s co-counsel includes Steve Berman of Hagens Berman Sobol Shapiro LLP and Bruce Simon of Pearson, Simon & Warshaw, LLP.
