

They've Got Next: Antitrust Fresh Face Jeanifer Parsigian

DECEMBER 6, 2021

Winston & Strawn Partner Jeanifer Parsigian was recently profiled in a Bloomberg Law piece titled "They've Got Next: Antitrust Fresh Face Jeanifer Parsigian." This ongoing series highlights attorneys who are making waves in their respective practice areas. In 2021, Jeanifer gained national attention while working on the litigation team that represented student athletes in NCAA v. Alston, a landmark antitrust case against the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which ultimately went to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"There's certainly luck in terms of these types of cases coming along, but I've never been afraid to speak up in my work and it's made a complete difference in my career," Jeanifer said.

Jeanifer has worked on cases involving all aspects of antitrust law in various industries. "What I love most about antitrust law is that every case involves a different industry," she explained. "You have to learn everything about it and figure out all the economics of it."

Click here to read the full Bloomberg Law article.

Click here to learn more about NCAA v. Alston.

Click here to learn more about Winston's Antitrust Practice.

1 Min Read

Related Locations

San Francisco

Related Topics

Litigation

Antitrust Litigation

Antitrust and Competition

College Sports

NCAA

Related Capabilities

Antitrust/Competition

Litigation/Trials

Sports

Related Regions

North America

Related Professionals

Jeanifer Parsigian