

Cari Stinebower Discusses How Russia's War on Ukraine Will Affect the Global Economy

FEBRUARY 24, 2022

Winston & Strawn Partner Cari Stinebower, who focuses her practice on International Trade, discussed how Russia's war on Ukraine will affect the global economy on NPR's Marketplace podcast.

Additional sanctions against Russian banks and companies will continue to disrupt global trade and financial relationships.

"We are seeing disruptions already in the maritime sector, in shipping lanes coming out of the Black Sea. And then dealings in sovereign debt—the ripple effect will be throughout the financial sector. It could impact private equity, but also mutual funds," Cari said.

Listen or read the rest of Cari's commentary here.

Less Than 1 Min Read

Related Locations

Washington, DC

Related Topics

Russia

Ukraine

Economic Sanctions

International Trade

Related Capabilities

International Trade

Maritime & Admiralty

Financial Services

Related Regions

Related Professionals

Cari Stinebower