

Jeffrey Kessler Featured on Bloomberg's "Uncommon Law" Podcast

APRIL 19, 2022

Winston & Strawn Co-Executive Chairman Jeffrey Kessler sat down with Bloomberg's "Uncommon Law" podcast to discuss the impact of NCAA v. Alston on college athlete name, image, and likeness (NIL) rights, as well as the future of college athlete compensation, which will be significantly impacted by the outcome of the House v. NCAA case in which Jeffrey is co-lead counsel.

"By allowing individual conferences to regulate," Jeffrey said, "we [would] get to the correct economic outcome—where the athletes that generate huge revenues get to partake in those revenues."

Listen to the rest of Jeffrey's insights in the full episode.

Less Than 1 Min Read

Related Locations

New York

Related Topics

NIL

NCAA

College Sports

Related Capabilities

Antitrust/Competition

Sports

Related Regions

Related Professionals

Jeffrey Kessler