Matthew is an associate in the firm's Dallas office who focuses his practice on intellectual property litigation. Matthew utilizes his legal training and years of experience in product development to assist clients in their business disputes.

Matthew is an associate attorney focusing on intellectual property matters. He earned his J.D. magna cum laude from Pepperdine University Caruso School of Law. During law school, he served as an Associate Editor for the Pepperdine Law Review and received multiple awards in areas including Trademark and Federal Courts. He is licensed to practice law in Texas and is also a registered Patent Agent.

Before entering the legal profession, Matthew worked as an engineer in medical-device product development. He led development projects, assisted with regulatory submissions, and gained experience with complex technologies. His technical background, combined with his legal training, provides a strong foundation for handling intellectual property disputes involving patents, trademarks, and related issues.
