Global Banking & Markets Latin America 2026: Insights on Argentina and Regional Capital Markets

FEBRUARY 26, 2026

Winston & Strawn was proud to sponsor the Global Banking & Markets Latin America Conference 2026, a premier capital markets event bringing together leading dealmakers and financial innovators from across the region and beyond.

During the conference, Talbert Navia, partner and chair of Winston's Latin America & Caribbean Practice, moderated a session titled "Debt and Transition: Argentina's Economic Shift and Its Ripple Effects Across LAC." The discussion explored Argentina's ongoing economic reforms and their potential impact across Latin America and the Caribbean, including emerging risks and opportunities for investors and Argentine issuers. Panelists also examined how these reforms may influence corporate financing, investment flows, and market access, while considering broader regional trends and geopolitical dynamics shaping capital markets.

KEY TAKEAWAYS:

- Argentina's ambitious economic reforms are driving significant shifts in the country's financial and corporate landscape.
- Investors and Argentine issuers are navigating new opportunities and risks arising from these reforms.
- Corporate finance strategies, investment flows, and market access are being reshaped as a result of policy changes.
- Broader regional trends and geopolitical factors continue to influence capital markets across Latin America and the Caribbean.

Thank you to the organizers and participants for an engaging and insightful discussion.
