Allison (Ally) is the Managing Director of IS Operations & Strategy at Winston & Strawn. She leads the firm's information services central operations, including department budgeting, technology procurement, and technical support services.

Allison has more than a decade of experience managing law firm IT and operations, most recently building enterprise procurement and PMO functions. She has a background in management consulting, specifically financial services technology and integration work, which expanded her core competencies in business analysis, strategic project planning and management. She has translated that expertise into extensive strategic project delivery in law firm environments, with a focus on data-driven decision-making and clear objectives and results.
