

Winston is well regarded for our deep and broad experience working on project finance transactions in the United States, Latin America, Europe, and other regions. Our experience includes numerous award-winning, complex deals and projects—often involving aggressive time frames and inventive solutions to help manage risk. Our “trusted, intelligent, and diligent” (The Legal 500 US 2023) practitioners represent public and private lenders, project sponsors and developers, equity investors, offtakers, and other project counterparties and stakeholders in connection with a broad range of investments and non-recourse/limited recourse financings.

Our experience covers a multitude of project types, including digital infrastructure; mining; oil and gas; power and transmission; social and commercial buildings; sports, stadiums, and entertainment venues; transportation and mass transit; and water and wastewater. We also have deep experience with public-private partnerships (PPPs or P3s), as well as project bonds. In addition, we have extensive capabilities regarding single-project and project-portfolio acquisitions and dispositions.

Clients rely on our attorneys to provide innovative thinking and a deep understanding of the market standards and commercial factors that impact all aspects of projects, including the related financial, contractual, and regulatory issues. We add value to our clients’ project finance transactions through tax-advantaged asset transfers, hedging strategies, and specialized tax-sensitive deal structures, such as like-kind exchanges.

We regularly play active roles in coordinating with other project professionals, such as independent engineers, financial advisors, environmental consultants, as well as consultants in fuel supply, power marketing, and insurance.

Our ability to integrate the various aspects of each project effectively and provide the appropriate legal team ultimately enhances the efficiencies and value that we provide our clients.

Furthermore, our successes working on cutting-edge and innovative deals across a wide range of structures and geographic regions, combined with our attorneys’ experience advising on some of the world’s leading projects, position us to deliver the essential skillsets, knowledge, and relationships to advise on all phases of a project successfully—from inception to completion.
