

Dan Webb Speaks at 2012 Symposium on Economic Crime

SEPTEMBER 4, 2012

Winston & Strawn firm chairman Dan Webb, based in the Chicago office, spoke at the 30th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime on September 6. The title of the Symposium was “Economic Crime – Surviving the Fall – Myths and Realities.” It focused on the particular issues and risks resulting from the financial crisis and included perspectives on how to promote stability and protect the integrity of the institution, business and economy.

Mr. Webb, whose trial practice concentrates in the areas of major commercial, civil, regulatory, and white-collar criminal cases, spoke on the panel titled “Too Big to Fail – How to Control Corporate Behemoths?”

Other topics discussed at the 2012 Symposium included:

- Old threats and persistent risks – when will we learn?
- Dirty Money – the risks to the good guys
- Fraud and Abuse – the new players in town
