Suzanne has been recommended in The Legal 500 UK since 2021 and sources say she is “very impressive” and has “great attention to detail”. Suzanne is an international disputes specialist, with a focus on high-value, complex, and multi-jurisdictional international arbitration and commercial litigation. She has acted as counsel and advocate for a number of multinational corporations in commercial arbitrations. She has experience in managing all aspects of such cases.

Suzanne’s international caseload has included disputes in Asia, Europe, and Africa. She has represented clients across sectors ranging from oil & gas, financial services, mining & metals, and technology. Suzanne has experience in a range of dispute resolution procedures including international arbitration (ICC, LCIA, LMAA, and HKIAC), litigation proceedings in the Courts of England & Wales (Commercial Court, Chancery Division, and Court of Appeal), and mediation. She has particular experience in joint venture and shareholder disputes.

Suzanne has significant experience in contractual disputes consisting of highly technical and specialist areas of expertise which have required her to become a subject matter expert in order to effectively resolve such disputes. Recent examples include disputes concerning the suitability of an oilfield for commercial production and the backend operations of iOS and Android applications.

Suzanne also regularly provides advice concerning other strategic aspects of disputes where arbitration, litigation, and/or regulatory proceedings that may be occurring in a number of jurisdictions worldwide. This has included making and responding to applications for urgent injunctive relief. In addition to her experience with contentious matters, Suzanne also gives strategic advice in relation to pre-contentious matters, including the drafting of dispute resolution agreements.

Suzanne completed a secondment at IT services company Atos.
