

Insurance Coverage and Data Breaches—Preparing for the Threats You Don't See

SEPTEMBER 22, 2015

Winston & Strawn hosted an eLunch titled “Insurance Coverage and Data Breaches—Preparing for the Threats You Don't See” on September 22, 2015, from 12:15-1:30 p.m. (Central).

Winston knows that privacy and data security are critical business issues for our clients, and being prepared is imperative. One important step in assessing your company's data security preparedness is determining if you have the right insurance to cover a cyber or other data security event. What coverage should you get? What policies are appropriate? And what happens if you have an event? Will your policy cover you? Should it? In this session, we covered the types of coverage available and key questions you should ask when thinking about signing up for coverage.
